LODGE FUNDS SHORT

Grayslake Woman, Worrying Over Lodge Shortage, Commits Suicide

HONESTY NOT QUESTIONED

Mrs. DesJardin, in Dying Statement, Says She Did Not Spend Money Intrusted to Her Care as Treasurer

Grayslake was stirred from one end to the other Thursday evening of last week when it became known that Mrs. Myrtle DesJardin had committed suicide, money missing from funds entrusted to her care being the cause of the act.

The money was stolen from the house I did not spend it for myself—was the woman's dying statement.

In the lodge and social life of the place Mr. and Mrs. DesJardin were always prominent, and for several years she had held the position of treasurer of the Mystic Workers and secretary of the Royal Neighbors of America.

Some time ago one of the officers of the Mystic Workers called upon Mrs. DesJardin for her books, which were to be audited. She did not give them to him and made an excuse that she had some work to do upon them before she could turn them over to the auditing committee.

The books of the Royal Neighbors had been audited July 9 and were found to be correct. But delay in transferring the cash to the treasurer caused a misunderstanding and there was commotion among the villagers.

There was no suspicion against Mrs. DesJardin's honesty among the Grayslake people but a story went the rounds which finally reached the husband. When he went home Thursday and interrogated her his wife is said to have assured him that her accounts were all right. Later, it is believed, she let him understand that a discrepancy existed, for he left the house and went down town for the purpose of raising funds. He later turned over $50 to the Royal Neighbors' society.

While alone in the house Mrs. DesJardin swallowed rat poison and she was found in agony about 8 o'clock that night. A physician was summoned and administered emetics, and it was believed the poison was expelled from her stomach. However it is thought the frantic woman crazed by the fear of disgrace obtained more of the poison for a half hour later she was seized with pain and died shortly after nine o'clock.

Mrs. DesJardin is said to have been a quiet, unassuming woman, in no way extravagant, and the people of Grayslake cannot believe she misappropriated the money intrusted to her keeping. They are equally as puzzled by the unfortunate woman's dying statement that the money had been stolen. Her whispered words were the first inkling that a theft had been committed and her ante-mortem statement was almost as great a surprise to the villagers as the first rumors of the shortage.

According to one member of the Mystic Workers' lodge, an amount between $150 and $175 is unaccounted for. The shortage in the Royal Neighbors' fund is said to be $44. This latter was made good by the husband.

The most puzzling feature of the suicide mystery is Mrs. DesJardin's failure to have reported the robbery that finally caused her to take her life, rather than face the suspicious glances of the village gossipers.

The inquest was held at Grayslake by Coroner Taylor of Libertyville, and the jury returned a simple verdict that Mrs. DesJardin had committed suicide by swallowing rat poison.

No mention of the lodge affairs was heard in the testimony or included in the verdict.

Impress of a Great Man.

In the heart of Africa, among the great lakes, I came across black men and women who remembered the only white man they ever saw before—David Livingstone; and as you cross his footsteps in the dark continent, men's faces light up as they speak of the kind doctor who passed there years ago. They could not understand him; but they felt the love that beat in his heart.—Henry Drummond.

MARRIED FOURTH TIME

David Van Patten of Lake Villa Leads Fourth Bride to Altar

Age and three previous wives proved no barrier to David VanPatten aged 76 years, of Lake Villa when he began courting Miss Ruth Johnson a young woman of 31 years and Saturday evening, July 20, at 5 o'clock in the Catholic parsonage at Antioch with Father Lynch officiating they were made man and wife. Mr. and Mrs. James Dalton, relatives of the bride acted as sponsors. After the ceremony a banquet was served at the Van Patten home.

The fact that Mrs. Van Patten No. 1, Mrs. Van Patten No. 2, and Mrs. Van Patten No. 3, lived and died in the Van Patten home at Lake Villa is not the least discouraging to the bride, whose plans were for her immediate arrival at the Van Patten home after the ceremony. They planned no wedding trip but went at once to the scene of the aged man's three former honeymoons—his old home.

Van Patten is a lively chap, despite his age and for a long time has been paying attentions to Miss Johnson. The latter thinks nothing of marrying a man so far her senior because she has grown to love him greatly. VanPatten has two married daughters one, 55; and the other 50 years of age. The present Mrs. VanPatten declares she will be as good a mother to them as if she were their elder. An interesting thing about the wedding is that Miss Johnson's father's sister was VanPatten's third wife.

CLEVER FORGER WORKS AT LAKE FOREST

One of the most daring robberies committed in this county in some time took place at Lake Forest Wednesday when a man who gave the name of Fred M. Bell, cashed a check on the Lake Forest State Bank for $55 and then attempted to cash another check on the National Bank of Lake Forest for $210, but who escaped when the cashier became suspicious and told him that he would have to look into the matter before he cashed the check. The Lake Forest police have an excellent description of the fellow and hope to be able to apprehend him.

Bell appeared in Lake Forest Tuesday and pretended that he was a retired soldier and had a letter which was addressed to the adjutant general in which he asked for copies of his discharge papers which he professed to have lost. He went to a Lake Forest notary public by the name of Spidell and got him to acknowledge his signature although afterwards it developed that his sole reason was to get a sample of Spidell's hand-writing.

Wednesday he appeared with a check on the German Minneapolis bank made out to John Stevens and signed by himself. On the back of the check appeared the name of Mr. Spidell saying that the check was "O. K." Needless to say that the name of Spidell had been forged, Bell having had an opportunity to copy the signature from the name which Spidell had signed on his letter of the day before. The check was for $55. Mr. Spidell, besides being a notary public, is a prominent citizen and a bank official and his signature went as undisputed proof that the check was all right.

Bell then went to the National bank with a check for $210 but the cashier was suspicious and told him that he was going to call up Spidell and verify the signature.

BLESSING OF THE NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH BELL

The beautiful new bell donated to the St. Peter's church by Dr. Chas. Venn, will be solemnly blessed next Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. His Grace, Archbishop Quigley, finding it impossible to be present, has delegated the Very Rev. Dr. J. P. O'Mahoney, President of St. Viator's College, to perform the ceremony. He will be assisted by Rev. J. E. Lynch, as deacon, and Rev. J. E. Curley as sub-deacon.

Mr. Thomas Donnelly and Mr. Paul Wenigman will act as sponsors. Dr. O'Mahoney, a speaker of rare ability, will preach the dedicating address. It is expected that a large number of people will be present.

Lifelong Eccentric Dresser.

An old man who recently passed away in Whittinsville, Wash., during all the 88 years of his life had never worn stockings—because he hated the feeling of them; nor had he worn anything but a straw hat, summer and winter alike, to keep, as he expressed it, rain and snow from going down his neck.

VALUE OF SWAMP LANDS

Board of Supervisors Met on Wednesday to Set Value on Land at Fox Lake

WILL OUST "SQUATTERS"

Chicago People Who Have Built Cottages and Taken Possession of "Made" Land, Must Vacate

The Lake County Board of Supervisors have made arrangements to go to Fox Lake this week to look into the swamp lands matter and to see that "squatters" from Chicago, who have taken possession of a "made" island in Pistakee bay are ousted from the land.

The swamp land matter is one that has caused a great amount of controversy for some little time due to the fact that the board has been unable to get a fair price for the land which people in the vicinity wish to purchase. There is a large amount of this low land to which the county holds title and as there have been many opportunities to dispose of it the board wishes to definitely settle what the land is worth.

Years ago large tracts of this swamp land were sold for as low as $1.00 and $1.25 an acre. The owners proceeded to fill in the land and as a result the value has been increased to one hundred dollars an acre, the profit being about ten thousand per cent.

The board of supervisors do not wish to dispose of any more of the land at such a ridiculously low figure and for this reason they will determine just what the land really is worth. The property owners whose land abuts on this swamp land will be given the first opportunity to buy additional land and if there is any left it will be sold to the others who have put in a bid for it.

Another matter that has given the board considerable trouble is the island in Pistakee bay. It was formed by the deposits of sand and earth which were taken when the canal between Fox and Long lakes was excavated. Hardly had the island been formed when "squatters" from Chicago took up their abode on it, building a little cottage.

There might not have been so much objection to this land had there not been complaints that the people who occupy the island have one continual revelry from morning until late at night which it is said, is quite annoying to the resorters who occupy cottages on the mainland, scarcely one hundred feet away. A complaint was made to the board last year and the "squatters" were ordered to leave the island. This they refused to do and still occupy it this year. The board intends to see that its order is carried out.

LIMIT AID TO SUPERANNUATED MINISTERS

The retired or superannuated preacher who has stocks and bonds or an income from any source of over $600 a year will be prevented from receiving any money contributed by the Methodists of the Rock River conference for the support of its retired ministers until after means of comfortable support have been given to all who are in need, according to a plan adopted at the Des Plaines camp meeting Monday.

A committee made up of Rev. A. T. Horan of DeKalb; Rev. Wm. Craven and Rev. Libberton of Chicago; Rev. J. Clayton Youker of Lake Bluff and Rev. Whipple of Libertyville decided on the plan.

"The plan adopted," said Dr. Libberton, who has been a member of the board in charge of the distribution of these funds for the past twenty-eight years, "provides for asking each applicant: 'Have you an income of $600 or more?'"

"If he answers 'yes,' and then declines to relinquish his claim voluntarily his case will be brought up publicly before the conference and he will have an opportunity to present his arguments. Final action will be taken by the conference itself."

TRUNK AND $1,000 STOLEN

Thieves Take Trunk From the Room of Sleeping Man and Carry it Away

BROKE IT OPEN WITH AXE

Money Belonged to Polish Cadets Society of Which Joe Cylewski of North Chicago Was Treasurer

One of the boldest robberies that ever has taken place in this vicinity occurred at North Chicago Monday night when robbers entered the boarding house at Fourteenth street near Commonwealth avenue, North Chicago, and carried away a trunk containing between $800 and $1,000 held in trust by Joseph Gylewski, employed at the Hardware Foundry, who is treasurer of the Polish Cadets of North Chicago.

After removing the trunk from the house the robbers took it to an apple orchard about five blocks away and there broke it open by means of an axe. It was found Tuesday morning by John Walzak whose home is near the orchard.

Gylewski is said to have been a man who did not place much confidence in banks and for this reason kept all the funds intrusted to him as treasurer of the Polish Cadets in a trunk in his room. Some one evidently learned the secret which led to the robbery.

When Gylewski awoke the first thing he noticed was that the trunk was gone. He could not believe his eyes but a closer search convinced him that there could be no doubt about the matter.

About the same time Walzak noticed the trunk in the rear of his home and making an investigation discovered the name of the owner upon the cover.

He at once called Gylewski up on the phone and informed him of the matter. The owner hurried to the scene and found that sure enough, it was his trunk. The contents, including valuable papers, etc., were all scattered about the ground, the robbers, evidently having thrown them out in their search for the money which they found in the bottom of the trunk.

There were several boarders in the house with Gylewski, but it is said that none of them are suspected of having committed the crime. The North Chicago police had received no report up to an early hour and the facts were given out by people living in the vicinity of the boarding house. There seems to be not the slightest question about the matter, although it is hard to say why the police were not notified.

MARTIN MADDEN DIED LAST MONDAY

Martin B. Madden, better known as "Slippy" Madden, the prominent labor leader of Chicago died Monday at Lake Villa, of consumption.

Madden went to Lake Villa sometime ago where he was seeking his health. At the time it was reported there that he was dying and that his chances for ultimately returning to the head of his labor work in Chicago were very slight.

At the time he denied that he was real sick, saying he was merely taking a rest.

Madden was married in Waukegan a few years ago and his marriage was kept a secret for sometime.

CANNOT USE THE FUNDS

Peoria Judge Puterbaugh Makes Ruling in Woodman Matter.

Judge Leslie Puterbaugh of the district court of Peoria has made a decision regarding the insurgent movement in this state. The decision effects the rights of a camp to use its funds to fight the head officers. The following relating to the matter is taken from the Peoria Herald-Transcript:

Judge Puterbaugh ruled that the by-laws of the organization contained no clause which could be construed to allow the majority of the members to pay out sums from the general fund to fight the officers of the head camp. The minority members of the camp who had partaken in the levy which raised the general fund, have certain rights, he claims, which could not be voted away by the majority. To divert the moneys of the camp, therefore, as proposed by the majority was found to be in direct violation of the fraternal powers of the order.

In each of the local camps of the order, as well as in most of the camps throughout the state there is a little coterie of members who are not in favor of the insurgent movement against the raise in rates proposed by the head camp of the order. It will be possible for any standpat member in each lodge to prevent his camp from contributing to the campaign fund of the insurgent movement by rushing into court and filing a petition for injunction.

TAX SALE THIS YEAR SET THE RECORD

The amount of the delinquent tax sale this year was $23,867.27, the largest that it has been in many years, possibly in the history of the county. Of this amount $11,765.05 was general tax and $12,102.22 was special.

In all this year there were 2,450 different pieces of property sold at the sale, the largest amount in years. Despite this fact it was disposed off in record time, due largely to the energy of County Clerk Hendee and County Treasurer Westerfield who conducted it.

FORMER ANTIOCH RESIDENT DEAD AT ALMENA

The following clipping from an Almenna, Wis., paper has just been handed to us and although it may seem a trifle late we deem it sufficient interest to our readers to be worthy of publication, inasmuch as the person whose obituary it is, is well known to many of our townspeople not however, as well by the name of Barrett which was hers at the time of her death, as by her former name of Brya:

Sarah Elizabeth Barrett, was born Jan. 2, 1828 near Albany, New York, was married to F. A. Brya, in Kenosha county. He died some time in the year of 1890. To them was born six children, four sons and two daughters, one son and two daughters still survive her. She was again married to J. W. Barrett who died about a year ago. She has been making her home of late with her daughter Mrs. VanPatten of Almenna, at which place she died on May 19, 1912. She was christened into the Episcopal church at an early age having no other church relationship through life. Her age was 84 years, four months and 27 days.

Funeral services was conducted by Rev. McCrskrie at her late home with burial in Almenna cemetery.

The World's Greatest Slave.
Aesop probably is one of the most noted slaves that ever lived. The fables and stories he told have delighted mankind for twenty-five hundred years, and there is no telling how much longer the world will continue to enjoy them. Aesop was so deformed that for a long time his Greek master could not sell him. Finally he was sold, and the master found him so wise that he was set free.

HANFORD RESIGNS

FEDERAL JUDGE AT SEATTLE QUILTS AS HOUSE COMMITTEE IS INVESTIGATING.

ILL HEALTH IS REASON GIVEN

Jurist Telegraphs Resignation to President While Last Witnesses Wait to Testify in Impeachment Proceedings—President to Await Letter.

Seattle, Wash., July 24.—United States district court Judge Cornelius H. Hanford, whose conduct on the bench has been under investigation for nearly a month by a subcommittee of the house judiciary committee, telegraphed on Monday last his resignation to President Taft.

The impeachment proceedings against the judge were the direct outgrowth of a decision rendered by him last spring declaring forfeited the naturalization papers of a resident of this city named Olsson because of his Socialistic views. Hanford based his action on the ground that Olsson had deceived the court and that his radical opinions constituted a menace to the institutions of the country.

The impeachment resolution was introduced in the house by Representative Victor Berger of Milwaukee and on its adoption a subcommittee headed by James M. Graham of Illinois was appointed to conduct an investigation in this city.

In the hearings witnesses testified that Judge Hanford had been seen repeatedly in an intoxicated condition on the bench and in the streets; that the judge manipulated receivership cases to the advantage of a favored appointee; that he had sought favors of the Northern Pacific Railroad company while that corporation was a litigant in his court and that, after he had been given an option on certain lands by the Northern Pacific, he rendered a decision favoring the company in a tax suit.

The judge was accused also of having a part in the wrecking of a business firm which was brought into his court on a claim of creditors. In connection with this particular case the name of Richard A. Ballinger, former secretary of the interior, was mentioned in the hearings.

When the committee met here Monday it was believed the last oral testimony would be presented before night and the committeemen be ready to begin consideration of the mass of documentary evidence already in the record.

While the range of subjects to be considered was not known. It was thought probable the trial of Charles F. Munday and those of the other Alaska coal land operators would be investigated.

To a question put by a reporter as to whether the resignation of the judge would relieve the committee from further duty, the chairman declined to answer.

Washington, July 24.—President Taft will take no action in connection with Hanford's resignation until he has received a letter which the judge has written him. The president made this statement:

"Judge Hanford has telegraphed me that he has written me a letter," said the president, "and I shall do nothing until I have received it."

GOVERNOR DENEEN FOR TAFT

Illinois State Republican Nominee Will Stay by Party—New Ticket Is Promised.

Chicago, July 24.—Gov. Charles S. Deneen and the other nominees on the Republican state ticket told the Progressive party committee of five Monday they were first of all Republicans; that they expected to support the Republican national ticket, and that they would not endorse Theodore Roosevelt and his new party.

When this information was conveyed at noon to Senator Joseph M. Dixon, manager of the Roosevelt campaign at the Congress hotel, he said it could mean but one thing—the nomination of another state ticket composed of men who were identified with the new political party.

None of the Republican state nominees left the committee of five long in doubt. The Progressives—Medill McCormick and Chauncey Dewey of Chicago, J. T. Williams of Sterling, B. F. Harris of Champaign and F. G. Allen of Moline—went into conference with the governor at the statehouse in Springfield and in two hours had received the answer of all the nominees.

Senator Dixon professed surprise that there should be any question raised regarding a third ticket in this state.

By a vote of 6 to 3 the national house election committee on Thursday voted to oust Catlin, declaring his seat was obtained by fraud.

Six Others Are Seriously Damaged by Bombardment From the Turkish Forts—Rome in Ignorance of the Engagement.

Constantinople, Turkey, July 22.—The entrance of the Dardanelles were attacked Friday by eight Italian torpedo boats.

The Turkish forts replied vigorously sinking two of the Italian war vessels and damaging the other six.

The cannonade lasted 45 minutes. The cabinet ministers were called hurriedly to the palace, where at a council of war it was decided to close the Dardanelles.

Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish ambassador at London, who was appointed grand vizier July 17, has undertaken to form a new cabinet.

This bombardment of the entrance to the Dardanelles is the second attack on the straits connecting the Aegean sea and the Sea of Marmora since the outbreak of the Turco-Italian war.

Rome, Italy, July 22.—The Italian government, according to a semi-official note issued here Friday, knows nothing of the reported action between a flotilla of Italian torpedo boat destroyers and the Turkish forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles.

Declares Check for $10,000 From Sugar Corporation Was Returned to the Donor.

Washington, July 20.—When Alton B. Parker ran for president in 1904, the Democratic campaign fund contained about $1,000,000, said W. F. Sheehan of New York, who testified Thursday before the senate committee investigating campaign funds. Mr. Sheehan was then chairman of the Democratic national executive committee. Money was sent by the committee, he said, to Maine, Colorado and Nebraska.

The witness declared the committee made a rule at the beginning of the campaign to accept no money from any trust.

"There was $10,000 contributed," began Mr. Sheehan, "by the American Sugar Refining company—not by Mr. Havemeyer—to the state committee. Before the check was cashed we heard about it and it was returned."

Washington, July 19.—Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock on Wednesday told the senate committee investigating campaign contributions of 1904 and 1908 that the records of the funds used in President Taft's election, as filed at Albany, N. Y., were correct.

Mr. Hitchcock said the total collected through various agencies of the committee in 1908 was $1,655,518.27. Of this amount $620,150 was collected in various states and handled by the state committees.

No contribution was received from a corporation, Mr. Hitchcock said, because congress had just passed a law prohibiting it.

JAPAN'S EMPEROR VERY ILL

Critical Sickness Is Causing the Gravest Anxiety—Physicians Pronounce the Case Acute Nephritis.

Tokyo, July 23.—The critical illness of Mutsuhito, emperor of Japan, is causing the gravest anxiety. The court physicians Sunday pronounced the case acute nephritis with alarming symptoms of uremic poisoning.

The empress, who has been in almost constant attendance since the acute attack occurred, remained at his majesty's bedside.

His majesty is nearly sixty years of age. The change for the worse came suddenly Friday evening. In the midst of a conversation with the empress the emperor suffered a sudden collapse and the court doctors were summoned. Crown Prince Yoshihito, who is convalescing from chickenpox, has so far recovered that he will be allowed to visit his father.

PRIEST STOPS SLAUGHTER

After Sacking Express and Baggage Cars Zapatistas Pour Oil on Coaches and Set Them Afire—Gomez Is Arrested.

Mexico, July 23.—In an attack by Zapatistas Sunday on a passenger train between this city and Cuernavaca, Morelos, more than sixty persons were killed and many wounded.

The Zapatistas, who are said to have numbered 500, placed a mine under the railroad track, which exploded as the locomotive passed over it. The overturned engine hardly had settled when the Zapatistas sprang up from all sides and poured a murderous fire into the train.

First the object of their attack was a second-class coach in which were riding a federal military escort with a captain and two lieutenants. The federalists got out of the car as quickly as possible and answered the fire of the assailants, but their efforts were futile. All of the command, with the exception of five who were wounded and two who escaped, were killed.

Thirty passengers in the second-class coaches were killed and many wounded. In the first-class coach no one was killed. One was dangerously wounded and may die. The conductor, an American named Aller, is not expected to live. After the train had been swept by their fire and few of the passengers or crew not killed or wounded, the Zapatistas rushed on their stricken victims and began killing the wounded.

After sacking the express and baggage cars, the rebels poured oil on the cars and, putting the bodies of the dead on them, set fire to the train. When the relief train arrived there was nothing but debris and a few persons, most of whom were hurt, to tell the tale.

San Antonio, Tex., July 23.—Emilio Vasquez Gomez, for a short time provisional president of Mexico, was arrested here Saturday night by secret service officers. Francisco Guzman, Gomez' private secretary, and Dr. P. Rueda also were taken into custody.

LOSES SEAT IN CONGRESS

Representative Catlin of Missouri Is Ousted From House, But Wins Bride Same Day.

Washington, July 22.—While the society columns of Washington newspapers were announcing Friday the engagement of Representative Theron E. Catlin of Missouri to Miss Laura Merriam, daughter of former Gov. William R. Merriam of Minnesota, the house elections committee No. 2 was reporting that Representative Catlin's election to congress had been obtained by fraud and declaring his seat vacant.

The vote in the committee was 6 to 3, the record having shown that $13,000 was expended by the candidate and his father, Daniel Catlin, a retired tobacco multi-millionaire of St. Louis.

It was contended on behalf of the accused representative that most of this money was expended by his father without his own personal knowledge, but this bore no weight with the members of the committee.

WOMAN ADMITS FATAL ERROR

Operator Testifies She Misunderstood Order That Caused Burlington Wreck.

Chicago, July 21.—"I misunderstood an order."

Mrs. Julia A. Wilcox, said to be a former inmate of the hospital for the insane at Dunning, Ill., and block signal operator at Western Springs, the scene of last Sunday's wreck on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, accounted for the catastrophe. She said her error in a telephone order whereby she unnecessarily had stopped two trains, had caused the confusion which brought about the collision.

Her admission was wrung from a mass of evasive and argumentative testimony given at the coroner's inquest held at La Grange, Ill., on Thursday.

The inquest was a fourfold investigation of the disaster in which thirteen lives were lost.

Andrew Lang, Scholar, Dead. London, July 23.—Andrew Lang, essayist, historian and one of the best known educators of the present decade, died at Benchery, Dussle, Scotland, Sunday, of heart failure. He arrived at the Hotel Benchery from London last Tuesday apparently in perfect health.

SPLENDID OUTLOOK FOR CROPS IN WESTERN CANADA

RELIABLE INFORMATION FROM THE GRAIN FIELDS SHOW THAT THE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD.

This is the time of year when considerable anxiety is felt in all the northern agricultural districts as to the probable outcome of the growing crops. Central Canada, comprising the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, with their 16,000,000 acres of wheat, oats, barley and flax, of which 6,000,000 acres may be said to be sown to wheat alone, has become a great factor in the grain markets of the world. Besides this, government returns show that every state in the Union has representatives in these provinces, and naturally the friends of these representatives are anxious to hear of their success. It has never been said of that country that it is absolutely faultless. There are, and have been, districts that have experienced the vagaries of the weather, the same as in districts south of the boundary line between the two countries, but these are only such as are to be expected in any agricultural country. The past has proven that the agricultural possibilities of this portion of Canada are probably more attractive in every way than most countries where grain raising is the chief industry. The present year promises to be even better than past years, and in a month or six weeks it is felt there will be produced the evidence that warrants the enthusiasm of the present. Then these great broad acres will have the ripened wheat, oats, barley and flax, and the farmer, who has been looking forward to making his last payment on his big farm will be satisfied. At the time of writing, all crops give the promise of reaching the most sanguine expectations.

In the central portion of Alberta, it is said that crop conditions are more favorable than in any previous year. Heavy rains recently visited this part, and the whole of this grain growing section has been covered. Reports like the following come from all parts:

"Splendid heavy rain yesterday. Crops forging ahead. Great prospects. All grains more than a week ahead of last year. Weather warm last week. Good rains last night."

From southern Alberta the reports to hand indicate sufficient rain. Crops in excellent condition. Labor scarce.

Throughout Saskatchewan all grains are looking well, and there has been sufficient rain to carry them through to harvest.

From all portions of Manitoba there comes an assurance of an abundant yield of all grains. Throughout southern Manitoba, where rain was needed a few weeks ago, there has lately been abundant precipitation, and that portion of the province will in all probability have a crop to equal the best anticipations. A large quantity of grain was sown on the stubble in the newer west, which is never a satisfactory method of farming, and may reduce the general average.

Taken altogether, the country is now fully two weeks in advance of last year, and in all grains the acreages sown are much larger than in 1911. This means that with auspicious weather the west will have the grandest harvest in its history. Two hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat has been mentioned as an estimate of the present growing crop, and it looks now as if that guess will be none too large.

The Bright Bermudas

ROYAL PALMS

A STREET IN ST. GEORGE'S

A BERMUDA RESIDENCE

THE HOME OF MRS. ST. GEORGE'S

HE gad-about, globe-trotting English and Americans, always looking for something new, have turned their restlessness to good account and located many a pleasant corner, favored by nature, on the old earth. Also, they spread the glad tidings when they find a place worth while, and straight way many others follow, to see for themselves. In this way the playgrounds of the Americans have been established.

Let a place be comparatively easy of access, have attractions of climate and scenery, natural beauty and historic interest, its fortune is made or its doom is sealed, depending upon the way you look at it. For the tourist, be he of the globe-trotting or the annual vacation variety, will begin to turn his face thither, in ever increasing numbers.

There are the Bermuda Islands, for instance. They are about forty hours sail (pretty snappy sailing) from New York, and the number of tourists who visit them annually outnumbers the native population by a third. It is no wonder, for within so short a distance of the rush and roar and turmoil and splendor and splurge of New York, lies this small group of many islands; a little, tranquil, well-governed, easy-going world, made up of dark green verdure, gay with flowers, set in the most vividly blue sea that ever was. Imagine a New Yorker in the thick of things, weary of winter and more weary of strife, with his fancy turning to a place where there is no hurry, no worry, no skyscrapers, no hoarse horn of automobile, no clang of trolley nor splutter of motorcycle, no brass band, vociferous newly-rich, no abject, incapable, disheartening poverty, and where no one seems anxious to get his money away from him by hook or crook; it is no wonder that the spring-time isles look good to him. And the Chicagoan, in his big, sooty, slovenly town, living wholeheartedly where they have "two seasons—winter and August," where the thermometer skips from withering heat to shivering cold in an hour or so and the population believes in the coming of spring in the face of everything to the contrary. A small bright, slightly world, made up of deep green islands, set in a sea of turquoise and sheltered by a wall of reefs, never very cold, never very hot, always bright with sunlight, Bermuda appeals to him.

The islands are dotted with towns and villages; quaint, old-time places, with narrow lanes of streets. The houses are built of coral rock and look as if they might last forever. This coral rock is easy to quarry and is saved in blocks for building. It seems to answer every purpose and makes a fire department next to superfluous. So many islands (one for every day in the year, they tell you) make any number of little bays and harbors and occasionally short stretches of beautiful beach. The clean sand is either gleaming white or pale pink, from the admixture of tiny particles of red coral. The roadways wind about, climbing and descending over the rolling surface, and walled with coral rock, which has been cut away to make the grades easy. These roadways wind too much and those in the villages are too narrow for automobiles. Besides the auto would not harmonize with the scheme of things and is not needed; for the Bermudian world is so small. The total area is only about twenty square miles.

The drives are delightful with their walls of coral lined with flowering shrubs and their continuous panorama of lovely views. The oleander and hibiscus make additional walls of blossoms. Bermuda lilies and purple morning glories are everywhere. The blossoms are very large. Every little way one glimpses a comfortable looking home set back among cedar trees and provided with lawn and flowers and thrifty garden patches. And the vivid sea is always near. It seems a kindly world, inhabited by kindly, self-respecting people. The islands are really very poor in natural resources; the soil is shallow and carefully conserved, only twelve-inch in depth on an average. But the people make the most of what they have. There are no fields of grain, but the good, old, faithful Bermuda onion brings many a dollar home, and potatoes, celery and lettuce are shipped to New York. Lilies are cultivated for export, the bulbs bringing in a respectable revenue. But the tourists, they are the "crop" that is most important. Big hotels and little ones, inns and tea-rooms, show places, carriages, sailing craft and shops are all subsisting upon the growing stream of visitors that flows to them. The tourists actually go hunting about for souvenirs for which to spend money and the supply is really meagre. There are few things made in Bermuda or found in Bermuda offered for sale. The shopkeepers don't make a pretense that their trinkets are produced in the islands. This is refreshing, any way, and the surprised patron buys a pin with an angelfish on it, of enamel (made in Sweden), or a strand of coral (from Italy), out of sheer thankfulness and goes on his way rejoicing.

The shops are antiquated, according to American ideas, but that is part of the charm of the place. The Bermudians do not need to strive to be up-to-date. The islands are like a maid whom fate has seen fit to dower with superb beauty and charm but no money. King Copetua (in the guise of the New Yorker) and everybody else stands ready to fairly worship her and burn incense in the shape of money before her.

Nature has provided the islands with many curious show places in addition to natural beauty. There are caves with strange and beautiful formations of stalactites and stalagmites. There are grottoes and pools and bays and tiny islands, as round as a wedding ring, and as alluring. There are the famous sea gardens where everyone goes in glass-bottomed boats to see the fishes at home, through the clear water. But they can be seen best at the Aquarium on Agar Island.

This structure was built for a magazine by the British government, and is rented to the Bermuda Biological Society for a trifling amount with the understanding that the government may take possession upon short notice, at any time, in case of necessity. Here one may see the wonderfully colored fishes, as vivid as jewels, and many curious inhabitants of the sea. Some of them are hideous to look at, like the octopus, and some of them seem grotesque replicas of land animals.

Bermuda is garrisoned by a regiment of British Infantry. On Sunday mornings the garrison parade followed by music of the military band tempts a throng of people to Prospect Barracks. The band is exceptionally fine and gives a concert twice during the week in Hamilton, the capital of the islands.

The Dockyard is one of the show places, being an important naval station, and Gibb's Hill Lighthouse, whose long flight of winding steps it is worth while to climb, is another. From here there is an unforgettable view of the whole of the little world of Bermuda, set in the vast, glorious ocean, and a chance to see at close range the great lamp.

But what pleases the child of the bustling, modern, changing "States" most of all, is the quaintness of the old towns. At St. George, the former capital, everything it seems remains about as it was two or three centuries ago. The oldest church, St. Peter's, still uses its silver communion service, the gift of William III. The Governor's pew and the Admiral's pew make us smile at their antiquated attempts at pomp but the beautiful tablets on the wall lead the fancy quickly back to the beginning of things for us. There is so much dignity and grave grace in the language of tribute to "Alured Popple Esq. The Good Governor," and on other tablets setting forth the virtues that we still delight to honor. And between the lines on many, or in a single word, is betrayed the longing for home and England which in those days was so very far away.

Think of the courage necessary to face a sea voyage which might last a few months! Think of it especially after the usual experience in sailing from New York to these fair isles in two days on a fine modern steamship. All those smartly dressed ladies and brisk, valiant looking men who came aboard the night before, where are they the morning after? They are wishing they had a tablet erected to their memory—anywhere. Everybody gets seasick on the way to Bermuda, and it is never any better coming back—it's worse. But this is a part of the play and considered so beneficial that to be exempt entitles you to feel that you haven't had your money's worth.

There are a number of things, besides the delightful climate and the old ducking stool, which we would gladly bring back to these United States with us. Among them are the gentle manners and voices of the people and their high average of education (everybody has to go to school there), and, above all, the general tidiness of everything and everybody. There are no unsightly scrap-heaps there. The only things near them are a few old, dismantled, sailing boats, moored in a quiet bay, sorrowfully waiting to be cut up into firewood. Their day is done long ago and that of the Lusitania is here. But sailing craft still transport freight in Bermudian waterways and ferry men carry passengers in row boats between the villages. It is very charming, this glimpse of antiquated, leisurely, cheerful life, within easy reach of us.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For twenty years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed.

"Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.

A Perfectly Digested Breakfast Makes Nerve Force for the Day.

Everything goes wrong if the breakfast lies in your stomach like a mud pie. What you eat does harm if you can't digest it—it turns to poison.

A bright lady teacher found this to be true, even of an ordinary light breakfast of eggs and toast. She says:

"Two years ago I contracted a very annoying form of indigestion. My stomach was in such condition that a simple breakfast of fruit, toast and eggs gave me great distress.

"I was slow to believe that trouble could come from such a simple diet, but finally had to give it up, and found a great change upon a cup of hot Postum and Grape-Nuts with cream, for my morning meal. For more than a year I have held to this course and have not suffered except when injudiciously varying my diet.

"I have been a teacher for several years and find that my easily digested breakfast means a saving of nervous force for the entire day. My gain of ten pounds in weight also causes me to want to testify to the value of Grape-Nuts.

"Grape-Nuts holds first rank at our table."

Wooring Covers Four Nations

Wealthy Nephew of Diaz Was Attentive to an Actress and Perilously Followed Her.

Ending a courtship which began in Cuba, crossed into Mexico, slipped back into Colorado, skipped over into Canada, and finally to Connecticut, Isidoro De La Torre, a young and wealthy nephew of the former President Diaz of Mexico, married Miss Callie Andrews of Brooklyn, an actress.

Mexican politics helped make the course of love far from smooth. When his uncle was forced to leave Mexico, De La Torre, whose father had been an adherent of the former president, found it necessary to leave, too. Indeed, De La Torre was told that if he remained in Mexico he would have his throat cut.

So he came to this country, and after a time started on a visit to Havana. On the steamer was Miss Andrews with a theatrical troupe, which was to tour Cuba, opening in Havana. Miss Andrews was attractive, lively and 20 years old. Senor De La Torre was good looking, wealthy, ardent and 21. Presumably it was moonlight on the Caribbean Sea, and any way the Southern Cross shone brightly in the sky. The young man fell in love and said so to almost anybody who would listen to him, but especially to Miss Andrews. She listened to him carefully.

In Havana the young folks quarreled and Miss Andrews left the theatrical company and Cuba in a hurry and went to Mexico City.

That was precisely where the young man could not follow her. De La Torre wrote bushels of letters to Miss Andrews and kept a submarine cable hot with messages imploring forgiveness.

Miss Andrews relented enough to go to Pueblo, Colo., and there her lover met her, and there was another quarrel after a short interval of blissful peace. Miss Andrews vanished again and this time brought up in Montreal, where she was located by Senor De La Torre.

Where to Look for Heroes.

Through many generations the habit of mind has become fixed and with rare exceptions we look for heroism on the field of activity alone. It is easy to see in the midst of battle where men are struggling with each other, easy to see in the cab of the locomotive which is rushing to destruction as the engineer stands with his hand upon the throttle, easy to see in the collision at sea when superhuman strength or restraint are exhibited, and yet how faintly do these instances compare with the heroism of the sick room or the solitude, where there is no excitement to nerve one to a mighty effort. Almost anyone can fight, but there are few who can endure and wait. Most of us can talk, but only a few can keep silent. Many there are who can give generously; few there be who can receive gracefully. The spectacular is easy, the commonplace is hard. And we are mostly commonplace. But after all there is the field of the heroic and there the glory of humanity is won.—Universalist Leader.

After the $100 Bill.

Every time Arthur Krohn's fireman picks up a piece of waste now Arthur seizes it and says: "Let me do that!" Arthur gets the waste as soon as it comes into his engine and tears it all to pieces, looking for hundred-dollar bills.

Every railroad man on the Big Four knows Arthur Krohn is the special engineer for engine 24, which Vice-President Burnett uses when he inspects the system. Arthur's fireman picked up a piece of waste to wipe the engine at Cincinnati recently, and in tearing it found he had found the ends of five $100 bills. There was just enough there to tell that they had been $100 bills and not enough for Krohn or his fireman to send in to Washington and say that the bulldog had seized the bill when the children were playing with them and had swallowed the other part and would the government please send new ones, as they were needed at home.

The ends of the bills were stuck together and there was no way to tell how they got into the waste.—Indianapolis News.

Cling to Ancient Gaslight

British Statesmen Conduct Deliberations Without the Aid of Modern Illumination.

The system of lighting the British house of commons is under review, and members may be asked before long whether they would prefer electric to the present use of gas. The actual fount of the illumination is not visible in the house; there is no chandelier, and none of those brackets against the wall which one sees in modern drawing-rooms against discolored walls. But the roof has a considerable space of thick ground glass panels set in a framework of brown beams, and each of the panels bears a rendering of the English red rose. Above this glass there is a kind of attic from which the lighting is done.

The house is very often sparing of the gas bill. On a quiet summer afternoon the debate will go on in the fading light of day till members can hardly see one another's faces, and then the clerk of the house suddenly realizes that he cannot see the paper under his nose. He looks up and finds the house wrapped in shadow. He touches a bell; a servant comes in and receives the direction for the lights. The light is turned on in the rendering of the red rose. It arrives in the house like a shower of rain on a summer night. First a faint, tentative stirring, a softening, a sponge in the face, then after that the deluge, and the room below is drenched in a mellow downpour. The dark spaces beneath the galleries drink it up like a thirsty land. The whole scene is refreshed. Strangers in the house look up into the roof, and then they sit up and begin a more intelligent reading of the men and things below.

Initiative and Referendum.

The recall, together with the Initiative and referendum, are institutions of Switzerland, where they have been established for many years. The recall became law in this country for the first time when Los Angeles put it into its city charter in 1903. From what source in this country the idea came is not exactly certain, but it was a part of the agitation of the last decade of the nineteenth century, which gave the country the Farmers' Alliance, the People's party and similar movements. There does not seem to be any one man's name prominently connected with the recall; it arose out of the popular enthusiasm for "direct legislation," that is, for making the people directly responsible for important measures instead of leaving them in the hands of elected representatives. It is now a doctrine quite generally accepted among "Progressives" of both parties, Democratic and Republican.

The Globe's Alteration Sale

Now in Progress and Continues a Full Week

We Are Soon to Alter and Redecorate the Interior of Our Store and Must Heavily Reduce Stock Before the Carpenters and Painters Arrive

The Season's Most Stupendous Sale

A SERIES of interesting sales have occurred at The Globe in the last few months, but none can rival in importance this present affair, for it takes in every department of the store and every line of seasonable merchandise. It is utterly impossible to start alterations with our present large stock on hand. It must be reduced to at least one-third its present size and it must be done in a short time as the workmen will soon be here. A single glance over this ad should be sufficient to convince one of the reckless manner in which we have slashed prices. If you are about to purchase vacation and traveling necessities, you can save enough money in the purchase of same at this sale, to assist considerably in paying your vacation expenses.

Another Stroke in Our Progress

In a short time there will be a wonderful change in the interior appearance of the Globe, some decided changes in the arrangement of stocks. When we moved our furniture department to another store, it was for the purpose of not only expanding that business but to leave us more room on our second floor for other lines. We are now about to alter the interior of our store so that all departments will have a larger and better opportunity for display. The departments figuring most conspicuously in this enlargement are the Women's and Children's Ready-to-wear on the second floor, and the piece goods, Women's furnishing and shoes on the main floor. Further details in regard to this improvement will be made from time to time in our advertising.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledges, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational run across country with the mail, appearing at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight roasts a rich roast. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York and confronts the financiers. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country. Daylight gets deeper into high finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him. Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. One day he asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him and they canter away, she trying to analyze her feelings. Dede tells Daylight that her happiness could not lie with a money manipulator. Daylight undertakes to build up a great industrial community. He is insistent that she marry him and yet hopes to win her. Daylight falls back into his old drinking ways. There is a flurry in the money market.

"Dede, if I tell you, flat and straight, that I'm going up to live on that ranch at Glen Ellen, that I ain't taking a cent with me, that I'm going to scratch for every bite I eat, and that I ain't going to play any card at the business game again, will you come along with me?"

She gave a glad little cry, and he nestled her in closely. But the next moment she had thrust herself out from him to the old position at arm's length.

"How is this possible? How can you leave your business? Has anything happened?"

"No, nothing's happened yet, but it's going to, blame quick. I've taken your preaching to heart, and I've come to the penitent form. I've taken my last drink. You're marrying a whiskey-soak, your husband won't be that. He's going to grow into another man so quick you won't know him. A couple of months from now, up there in Glen Ellen, you'll wake up some morning and find you've got a perfect stranger in the house with you, and you'll have to get introduced to him all over again. You'll say, 'I'm Mrs. Harnish, who are you?' And I'll say, 'I'm Elam Harnish's younger brother. I've just arrived from Alaska to attend the funeral.' 'What funeral?' you'll say. And I'll say, 'Why the funeral of that good-for-nothing, gambling, whiskey-drinking Burning Daylight—the man that died of fatty degeneration of the heart from sitting in night and day at the business game.' 'Yes, ma'am,' I'll say, 'he's sure a gone coon, but I've come to take his place and make you happy. And now, ma'am, if you'll allow me, I'll just meander down to the pasture and milk the cow while you're getting breakfast.'"

"But you haven't answered my questions," she reproached him, as she emerged, rosy and radiant, from the embrace that had accompanied the culmination of his narrative.

"Now just what do you want to know?" he asked.

"I want to know how all this is possible? How you are able to leave duplicated in his eyes. "I've been working like forty horses ever since this blamed panic set in, and all the time some of those ideas you'd given me were getting ready to sprout. Well, they sprouted this morning, that's all. I knew I wanted to ride in the hills with you just about thirty million times more than I wanted to go to the office. And I knew all the time it was impossible. And why? Because of the office. The office wouldn't let me. And then I made up my mind that I was to the dividing of the ways. One way led to the office. The other way led to Berkeley. And I took the Berkeley road. I'm never going to set foot in the office again. That's all gone, finished, over and done with, and I'm letting it slide clean to smash and then some. I'm wiping the slate clean. I'm letting it all go smash. When them thirty million dollars stood up to my face and said I couldn't go out with you in the hills today, I knew the time had come for me to put my foot down. And I'm putting it down. I've got you, and my strength to work for you, and that little ranch in Sonoma. That's all I want, and that's all I'm going to save out, along with Bob and Wolf, a suit case and a hundred and forty hair brushes. All the rest goes, and good riddance. It's that much junk."

A knock at the door interrupted him, and he was left to stare delightedly at the Crouched Venus and on around the room at Dede's dainty possessions, while she answered the telephone.

"It is Mr. Hegan," she said, on returning. "He is holding the line. He says it is important."

Daylight shook his head and smiled. "Please tell Mr. Hegan to hang up. I'm done with the office and I don't want to hear anything about anything."

A minute later she was back again. "He refuses to hang up. He told me to tell you that Unwin is in the office now, waiting to see you, and Harrison, too. Mr. Hegan said that Grimshaw and Hodgkins are in trouble. That it looks as if they are going to break. And he said something about protection."

It was startling information. Both Unwin and Harrison represented big banking corporations, and Daylight knew that if the house of Grimshaw and Hodgkins went it would precipitate a number of failures and start a flurry of serious dimensions. But Daylight smiled, and shook his head.

He caught her by the hand and drew her to him.

"You let Hegan hang on to that line till he's tired. We can't be wasting a second on him on a day like this."

"But I know something of the fight you have been making," Dede contended. "If you stop now, all the work you have done, everything, will be destroyed. You have no right to do it. You can't do it."

Daylight was obdurate. He shook his head and smiled tantalizingly.

"Nothing will be destroyed, Dede, nothing. You don't understand this business game. It's done on paper. All I stand for is paper. I've got the paper for thousands of acres of land. All right. Burn up the paper, and burn me along with it. The land remains, don't it? Nothing is going to be lost—not one pile out of the docks, not one railroad spike, not one ounce of steam out of the gauge of a ferryboat. The cars will go on running, whether I hold the paper or somebody else holds it."

By this time Hegan had arrived in an automobile. The honk of it came in through the open window, and they saw it stop alongside the big red machine. In the car were Unwin and Harrison, while Jones sat with the chauffeur.

"I'll see Hegan," Daylight told Dede. "There's no need for the rest. They can wait in the machine."

"Is he drunk?" Hegan whispered to Dede at the door.

She shook her head and showed him in.

"Good morning, Larry," was Daylight's greeting. "Sit down and rest your feet. You sure seem to be in a flutter."

"I am," the little Irishman snapped back. "Grimshaw and Hodgkins are going to smash. If something isn't done quick, why didn't you come to the office? What are you going to do about it?"

"Nothing," Daylight drawled lazily. "Except let them smash. I guess. I've had no dealings with Grimshaw and Hodgkins. I don't owe them anything. Besides, I'm going to smash myself. Look here, Larry, you know me. You know when I make up my mind I mean it. Well, I've sure made up my mind. I'm tired of the whole game. I'm letting go of it as fast as I can, and a smash is the quickest way to let go. All you've got to do is to protect yourself and all our friends. Now you listen to me while I tell you what to do. Everything is in good shape to do. Nobody must get hurt. Everybody that stood by me must come through without damage. All the back wages and salaries must be paid pronto. All the money I've switched away from the water company, the street cars, and the ferries must be switched back. And you won't get hurt yourself none. Every company you got stock in will come through."

"Use a Different Tone of Voice, or You'll Be Heading for a Hospital."

"What have you done to him?" Hegan snarled at Dede.

"Hold on there, Larry." For the first time Daylight's voice was sharp, while all the old lines of cruelty in his face stood forth. "Miss Mason is going to be my wife, and while I don't mind your talking to her all you want, you've got to use a different tone of voice or you'll be heading for a hospital, which will sure be an unexpected sort of smash. And let me tell you one other thing. This all is my doing. She says I'm crazy, too."

Dede stepped forward where she confronted the two men.

"Wait," she said. "I want to say something. Elam, if you do this insane thing, I won't marry you. I refuse to marry you."

"I'll take my chance on that," Daylight said. "And now, Larry, you'd better be going. I'll be at the hotel in a little while, and since I'm not going to step into the office again, bring all papers to sign and the rest over to my rooms. And you can get me on the 'phone there any time. This smash is going through. Saved? I'm quit and done."

He turned to Dede as soon as Hegan was gone, and took her by the hand.

"And now, little woman, you needn't come to the office any more. Consider yourself discharged."

"I'd cry, if I thought it would do any good," she threatened.

"In which case I reckon I'd have to hold you in my arms some more and sort of soothe you down," he threatened back.

As he stood at the top of the steps, leaving, she said:

"You needn't send those men. There will be no packing, because I am not going to marry you."

"I'm not a bit scared," he answered, and went down the steps.

CHAPTER XX.

Three days later, Daylight rode to Berkeley in his red car. It was for the last time, for on the morrow the big machine passed into another's possession. It had been a strenuous three days, for his smash had been the biggest the panic had precipitated in California. The papers had been filled with it, and a great cry of indignation had gone up from the very men who later found that Daylight had fully protected their interests. It was these facts, coming slowly to light, that gave rise to the widely repeated charge that Daylight had gone insane. It was the unanimous conviction among business men that no sane man could possibly behave in such fashion. On the other hand, neither his prolonged steady drinking nor his affair with Dede became public, so

HAD TERRIBLE ITCHING, BURNING HUMOR ON FACE

Covered With Scabs. Very Embarrassing. Resinol Cured.

Here is proof indeed of what Resinol will do for sufferers from tormenting, unsightly skin humors. Mr. Will D. Hays, Russellville, Tenn., says:

"I caught syphilis or barber's itch. My face would get so smarting and burning, and great red welts would come on it, and in a few hours my face would be covered with scales or scabs the size of wheat bran. It would itch a great deal and the more I rubbed it, the worse it became. It even got up in the edge of my hair. It certainly was very embarrassing as well as annoying, too, as everyone wanted to know what was the matter with my face. I tried several different local remedies, but they did not do any good. Then I sent for a small jar of Resinol Ointment and that one jar cured me inside of ten days. I had had the barber's itch for thirty or forty days. I believe Resinol will do the same for others." (Dated April 11, 1912.)

Resinol Ointment stops itching instantly, and with the aid of Resinol Soap is the ideal household remedy for eczema and other skin and scalp eruptions, simple blackheads, dandruff, burns, scalds, sores, boils, ulcers and piles. Four druggists, Resinol Soap (25c) and Resinol Ointment (50c) or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Dept. J. B. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

Meeting Emergencies.

Senator Dixon was condemning a piece of political deception.

"The thing was as flagrant," he said, "as the railway case."

"Two men, one of them very short, were passing through a station toward the train gates when the bigger one was heard to say:

"I've took a half ticket fur ye, George. Yer so little, ye'll pass, all right."

"But," protested George, 'how about my beard?' And he twiddled his chin beard nervously.

"Oh," rejoined the other, 'tell 'em it's a mole.'"

"So Clara rejected the plumber."

"Do you know why?"

The Middle-Aged Woman. Of the many ways in which the middle-aged woman may vary the effect of her afternoon gowns none is simpler than the use of a collar and cuffs of white voile edged with scalloping and embroidery in a floral design. Another change may be the frock set of white chiffon with border of black malines, and still another is the one of black net hemstitched with silver thread. Some of these collars are so long in front that they terminate only at the waist line, where they cross in surprise effect and are tucked away under the girdle. An excellent model of this sort is of light blue lawn embroidered with black dots, and a second is of white argargir trimmed with tiny folds of broadcloth, alternating with eponge.

Excellent Plan. "I see," said Mrs. De Jones, while Mrs. Van Tyle was calling, "that you have a Chinese chauffeur. Do you find him satisfactory?" "He's perfectly fine," said Mrs. Van Tyle. "To begin with, his yellow complexion is such that at the end of a long, dusty ride he doesn't show any spots, and then when I am out in my limousine I have his pigtail stuck through a little hole in the plate-glass window, and I use it as a sort of ball rope to tell him where to stop."—Harper's Weekly.

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE SUCCESS OF THE KEEPING OF POULTRY IN SUMMER

Part of New Poultry Plant at University.

BY PROFESSOR J. W. LLOYD,
University of Illinois.

Poultry needs shade. Last summer many choice birds perished from lack of shade. In some cases it was the owner's fault or misfortune in not having made sufficient provision for shade in his poultry runs; in others the birds wandered into unshaded enclosures, and being unable to find their way out, died from over-heating within a few hours. While in seasons of less intense heat, the lack of shade might not lead to such fatal results, nevertheless it is generally recognized among poultrymen that shady runs are essential to the proper development of young chicks and the summering of breeding stock. The prize winners in adult classes in fall shows are usually birds that have been kept in shaded runs the preceding summer. It is surprising what a difference there is in the plumage of birds that have been exposed to different amounts of direct sunshine while developing the new coat of feathers. There is also a great difference in the general health and vigor, especially of male birds, depending upon how they have been handled during the hot summer months. Shade in the summer time is one of the prime essentials in successful poultry keeping.

Another thing that poultry needs in order to keep healthy and develop properly is plenty of free range. A few birds may be kept in a small enclosure under artificial conditions, providing constant attention is given to keep their quarters in a sanitary condition, to supply them with all the elements of food needed for their bodies, and to insure their taking sufficient exercise for their own welfare or for that of the egg basket. Young birds grown in confinement, especially if there are too many in a single flock, are likely to be lacking in both size and vigor, unless special care is taken to supply their every need. On the other hand, if the birds are removed from the brooder house when eight or twelve weeks old and put in colony houses placed at sufficient distances apart so that the flock occupying each house has undisputed right to a considerable range of the proper kind, there is no need to worry about balancing the birds' rations or inducing them to take exercise. The range should include both herbage and freshly cultivated ground. Fallen leaves are also an advantage, for they afford hiding places for insects and furnish material in which the birds can scratch even though the ground may be wet.

Poultry needs green food and animal matter. One reason that birds on free range are likely to do so much better than those in confinement is that they have access to growing vegetation and to a variety of animal food, chiefly insects and earthworms. The recent success of many poultrymen in inducing hens to lay during the winter months is attributed in part, at least, to the liberal use of green food in the form of sprouted oats, steamed alfalfa, etc. Green food is as essential during the summer as in the winter, and when drought cuts off the natural supply, as was the case in many places last summer, provision should be made to meet this demand.

Since poultry needs shade, free range, fresh dirt, green food, and an abundance of insects; and since fruit trees provide shade, require frequent tillage and ample space and need green cover crops and protection from insects, the combination of poultry and fruit is an ideal one. The permanent poultry houses may be built at the edge of the orchard so that the mature fowls may range to the interior as far as they like. The colony houses for the growing chicks may be scattered through the orchard, far enough from the permanent houses so that the adult fowls will not interfere with the chicks. The tillage of the orchard turns up a fresh supply of animal food every few days; the fallen leaves furnish scratching material; the herbage that persists about the base of the trees in spite of as close tillage as is possible with horse tools, affords sufficient green food early in the season, while the cover crop sown between the trees furnishes the autumn supply. From the standpoint of the fruit, the poultry is an advantage in adding to the fertility of the soil and in helping control certain injurious insects, notably the curculio.

VEGETABLE GARDEN AND ITS INSECTS

BY J. J. DAVIS,

Assistant Entomologist for Northern Illinois.

(From the Report of State Entomologist S. A. Forbes.)

Vegetable gardening is now one of the most important of the various agricultural interests of Illinois. According to the census of 1900 there were 256,213 acres in vegetables in Illinois in 1899, and the value of the products amounted to $10,346,797, this being the fourth largest valuation of such products for all the states. The average valuation of vegetables was $42.09 per acre, while that of all crops taken together was but $10.04. Although the gardening industry in Illinois, and especially in Cook county and counties adjoining, has greatly increased since 1899, the figures for that year serve to indicate the relatively great importance of vegetable growing in Illinois.

Chicago is the principal center of the truck garden industry of this state, and for a distance of 12 to 18 miles north, south and west of the city, agriculture is almost wholly gardening. This area is especially well adapted to such farming, as the more or less sandy character of the soil permits early tillage. The market afforded by Chicago and the supply of manure as well as the labor supply, are other reasons why this is an advantageous location for truck gardens.

Probably the most important garden product of Illinois is potatoes. The area in this crop in Illinois in 1900 was 139,464 acres, and the estimated value of the product was $4,702,033. In Cook county alone there were 15,338 acres in potatoes. Onions and cabbage are important crops, as are also asparagus, celery, beets and that class of vegetables known as general truck, which includes radishes, lettuce, parsnips, carrots, rhubarb, beans, etc. The growing of sweet corn, tomatoes, beans and peas for canning and of cucumbers for pickling is becoming a prominent industry, and the same is true of melon growing in many parts of the state.

The more intensive the culture of a crop, the more important becomes the control of its insect enemies. Land is especially desirable for vegetable gardens near the market centers and as these are invariably large cities, such land has a high value and the greatest possible returns must be realized from it. To insure this the control of injurious insects becomes of great if not prime importance.

The general farm methods for the control of insects are clean culture, use of vigorous plants, rotation of crops, fall plowing, early detection of insects and planting at the proper time. Probably the most valuable of all farm practices for the control of insects is clean culture, by which is meant the clearing away of all useless vegetation and the numerous other general measures which leave for insects no sufficient winter shelter or adequate protection from the weather, the birds and other natural checks upon their numbers. In fall rubbish of every kind, and especially standing unmarketable cabbages and onions, should be collected and destroyed, to deprive insects of their breeding and hiding places. These methods are particularly helpful in destroying cabbage and onion maggot, cutworms, thrips, plant-lice, potato beetles and striped cucumber beetles. In the summer likewise, and especially early in spring, it is important to keep down the weeds, for they promote a rapid multiplication of insects and provide temporary breeding places for some species. It is a common observation that healthy and vigorous plants withstand the attacks of insects much better than weak and neglected ones.

Crop rotation is one of the most valuable of the cultural methods for preventing insect attacks. As a rule it is bad practice in truck gardening to grow two successive crops of a vegetable or nearly related vegetables successively on the same piece of land; and further a crop should be planted as far as possible from the location of the same vegetable the year before. Especially is rotation desirable when the crop was badly damaged by insects the previous year. Fall plowing is another important means of insect control. In northern Illinois where the winters are severe the value of the measure is considerable, for its main object is to bring the insects in the soil nearer to the surface where they may be killed by the cold. It is often possible to avoid insect attack by either early or late spring planting.

Decrease in Sheep.

The steady decline in the number of sheep grown in this country leads the thoughtful to wonder how long it will be before these useful animals shall disappear from this continent.

IN THE PHILIPPINES

New Orleans Girl Spends Several Months on Islands.

Writes of Her Trip on a Coastwise Boat and the Strange Menu Served to the Party in Picturesque Native Town.

Manila, P. I.—"We were invited to spend several weeks in this province, and as it was likely to prove a novel experience, we came," says Mrs. Marcella Dorothy Ryar, a New Orleans girl who spent several months in the Philippines.

"We took the coastwise boat, which below stairs was crammed with natives, ponies, carabaoes, vegetables, the inevitable fighting cocks (a native neglects his family, but never his gamecock), fish, shell and babies.

"On the upper deck, however, beneath an awning, we were comfortable enough in steamer chairs.

"That evening we reached a native town, very odd with its native straw huts on stilts, and its crazy streets with cats, strings of fish and children. Also cocks and cockpits—and the jungle behind it all.

"There a banca, a clumsy, canoe-shaped native boat, decidedly top-heavy and uncomfortable, met us. It was paddled expertly by natives, picturesque in their scanty attire, and wearing at their belts knives quite large enough to make me shudder. We arrived at the station to see a magnificent sunset and eat a unique dinner. On the menu were of course many familiar dishes, but besides there were fried bananas sliced crosswise, thin and crisp, tasting like eggplant, a cousin to the cucumber, roasted, a salad made from cocoanut buds with mayonnaise. I did not like it at all—rice like popcorn, bamboo shoots, chicken with curry and a jelly made from flowers, which tasted like currants, also a drink of cocoanut milk, which is awful.

"The house is a darling. It is large, native in style, of straw and bamboo floors, large rooms, sliding partitions and shower bath in each room. Behind is the jungle, before a fine stretch of lawn, a beach and the water.

"That evening we sat on the wide gallery, in the usual steamer chairs, and listened to the plaintive native music from the barrio, where a dance was in full swing.

"Our host has a charming, if lonely existence. There are fifty native men in the barrio, whom he oversees at their work. His household arrangements are perfect, but it takes four boys and a cook to keep them so. It seems so funny to see a boy in pink knee pants, no shirt, but a dagger in his belt, serving chocolate, and excellent chocolate at that.

"The place is beautifully laid out; the irrigation ditches are crossed by pretty bamboo bridges, all things lending themselves to the general effect. I saw coffee, bananas and pineapples growing for the first time, the latter a beautiful red while growing. You should see the wonderful orchids and ferns some with fronds twelve feet long.

BAND PLAYS AS DOG DINES

Canine Guest of Honor at Banquet Celebrates Birthday and Devours His Share of Feast.

Hamilton, Ohio.—New York's four hundred have had their monkey dinners, other well sets have their innovations along that line, but this town bears the honor of giving a dog a real live banquet and concert to commemorate the anniversary of his birth.

The affair was given by Louis F. Morner, and the guest of honor was his dog, "Major," who, seated at the head of the table, was admired during the many courses by a host of his owner's friends. The city band gave a concert of several select numbers. "Major," unconscious of the honor that was being bestowed upon him, devoured his share of the viands and looked about for more.

ECZEMA CAME ON SCALP

Lebanon, O.—"My eczema started on my thigh with a small pimple. It also came on my scalp. It began to itch and I began to scratch. For eighteen or twenty years I could not tell what I passed through with that awful itching. I would scratch until the blood would soak through my underwear, and I couldn't talk to my friends on the street but I would be digging and punching that spot, until I was very much ashamed. The itching was so intense I could not sleep after once in bed and warm. I certainly suffered torment with that eczema for many years.

"I chased after everything I ever heard of, but all to no avail. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. Imagine my delight when I applied the first dose to that awful itching fire on my leg and scalp, in less than a minute the itching on both places ceased. I got some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the second day I never had another itching spell, and Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured me. I was troubled with awful dandruff all over my scalp. The Cuticura Soap has cured that trouble." (Signed) L. R. Fink, Jan. 22, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

PATHOS IN CHILD'S BRAVERY

Fortitude Shown by Little Sufferer in Hospital Touched Lady Henry Somerset.

Lady Henry Somerset, whose labors in behalf of the children of the London slums are constant and earnest, tells this affecting story of the way in which her interest in these little ones was aroused:

I was moved in that direction by the rare patience and imagination of one little boy. His example convinced me that patience was one of the qualities I needed most, and in seeking it I grew into that work.

I was in a hospital on visiting day, while the doctors were changing a plaster cast which held the crippled boy's limb. The operation was exceedingly painful, I was told. To my surprise, the little sufferer neither stirred nor winced, but made a curious buzzing sound with his mouth. After the doctors left I said to him:

"How could you possibly stand it?"

"That's nothing," he answered. "Why, I just made believe that a bee was stinging me. Bees don't hurt very much, you know. And I kept buzzing because I was afraid I'd forget about its being a bee if I didn't."—Youth's Companion.

The Giveaway.

"Jane," said her father, "how does it happen that I find four good cigars on the mantelpiece this morning? Did Henry leave them for me?"

"No," he took them out of his vest pocket to avoid breaking them last night, and I guess he forgot all about them afterwards."

The laugh that followed made her wish that she had been as careful with her speech as Henry had been with his cigars.—Detroit Free Press.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints."

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Make No Excuses.

We can wrest success from any failure and take from it much of the sting when we frankly admit that it was our fault, and that we have no excuse to offer, while at the same time we express our purpose not to fall in that way again.
